In review, you just read:

(1) How present-day Catholicism places the highest kinds of endorsements on the Rosary prayer.

(2) The truth is: the Rosary prayer is not “the epitome of the Gospel” in prayer form which I have also be our message.

(3) For a person claiming to be “born again” and yet praying this prayer stating Mary is their “life” would also be suggesting their current need of salvation which is found in Jesus Christ, who alone suffered and shed His blood on the cross to obtain full redemption for us and to save us from the Hell that we deserve. It is to Him we should go and exalting her to an idolatrous position as “Queen of Heaven”!

Let me now end with my personal version of the real “epitome of the Gospel” in prayer form which I have entitled, The Hail Holy King prayer:

Hail, Holy King and Lord Jesus, hail, our life (Col. 3:4), our sweetness (Mt. 11:29) and our hope (1 Tim. 1:1)! To thee do we cry, poor enslaved to sin (Jn. 8:34) children of the devil (1 Jn. 3:1)! Turn then, most gracious advocate (1 Jn. 2:1, KJV), thine eyes of mercy towards us and forgive us all our sins. We now turn from our sins and trust in you alone—who died on the cross and was buried but rose again the third day (1 Cor. 15:1-8). You alone are the only way to the Kingdom and the truth of the Gospel.

Let our eyes be on you alone to save us. O clement, O loving, O precious Lord Jesus!

Oftentimes the issue will arise over a particular person who attends a local Catholic church and professes to be “born again.” These people staying in such a religious system have thrown some evangelical Protestants into confusion regarding Catholicism itself, especially since we hear of alleged changes within that system. Hopefully, this literature will remove confusion regarding this serious problem with “born again” Catholics and also dispel misconceptions regarding present-day Catholicism through their open and widespread practice of praying the Rosary. Regarding “born again” Catholics, the core question is NOT, “Do they exist?” for certainly there are a few scattered about who have been truly saved by hearing and acting upon the truth—repentance towards God and faith in Christ Jesus (Acts 20:21; Acts 26:20).

The real issue regarding such people, however, is: HOW DID THEY GET SAVED TO BEGIN WITH? As with the Mormons and Jehovah’s Witnesses, if a Catholic gets saved, it is because he/she heard the true plan of salvation from some outside source, since these religious systems all proclaim a gospel (plan of salvation), which as Paul put it, is, “really no gospel at all” (Gal. 1:7). In other words, the one true plan of salvation which brings eternal life will NEVER be taught in their circles, though certain terminology might suggest otherwise!

Furthermore, getting “born again” in the minds of many Catholics occurred at the point of their infant baptism! In light of their present-day definition of being “born again” through infant baptism (Vatican II, Vol. 2, p.561), all Catholics informed about this teaching, without exception, can confidently call themselves “born again” and with a clear conscience! So just as with the Mormons and Jehovah’s Witnesses, we must define terms with the Catholics as well!

Regarding the Rosary, since ALL local Catholic churches pray it, several important points can be made regarding those who claim to be “born again” Catholics and desire to remain in such a religious atmosphere. Before we address these point by point, we must first establish present-day Catholicism’s official stand regarding the Rosary and what in the Rosary we should Scripturally take issue with, that is, if we are truly “born again.”

The Following Is The Position Of Vatican Council II On The Rosary:

“The contemplative life of religious would be incomplete if it were not directed in filial love towards her who is the Mother of the Church and of consecrated souls. This love for the Virgin will be manifested with the celebration of her feasts and, in particular, with daily prayer in her honour, especially the Rosary. The daily recitation of the Rosary is a centuries-old tradition for religious, and so it is not out of place to recall the suitability, beauty and efficacy of this prayer, which proposes for our meditation the mysteries of the Lord’s life “* (Vatican Council II, Vol. 2, p.251, emphasis ours).

“While respecting the freedom of the children of God, the Church has always proposed certain practices of piety to the faithful with particular solicitude and insistence. Among these should be mentioned the recitation of the Rosary: ‘We now desire, as a continuation of the thought of our predecessors, to recommend strongly to the faithful the recitation of the family Rosary... There is no doubt that... the Rosary should be considered as one of the best and most efficacious prayers in common that the Christian family is invited to recite. We like to think, and sincerely hope, that when the family gathering becomes a time of prayer the Rosary is a frequent and favoured manner of praying’. In this way, authentic devotion to Mary, which finds expression in sincere love and generous imitation of the Blessed Virgin’s interior spiritual attitude, constitutes a special instrument for nourishing loving communion in the family and for developing conjugal and family spirituality. For she who is the Mother of Christ and the Church is in a special way the Mother of Christian families, of domestic Churches” (ibid., pp. 865, 866, emphasis ours).

To reiterate and capsulate what you just read, Vatican Council II says:

(1) Your contemplative religious life is incomplete without a love for Mary. This love for Mary is especially manifested by praying the Rosary. The Rosary is suitable, beautiful and efficacious, according to present-day Catholicism (p.251)!

(2) An example of a “practice of piety” is the Rosary. This means all Catholics show their “authentic devotion to Mary” by reciting the Rosary. Also, the Rosary is supposed to be “one of the best and most efficacious prayers” (pp.865,866).

* These statements are the official position of present-day Catholicism. To believe otherwise is to show yourself uninformed regarding this Catholic prayer and how it is officially viewed from their perspective. If someone tells you something in contradiction to these things, they are misrepresenting, intentionally or unintentionally, the importance of the Rosary and present-day Catholicism.

Let’s now focus in upon how the Rosary practice is ended by quoting the New Catholic Encyclopedia, Vol. 12, 1967, p.667.

“The Rosary is begun and terminated in various ways. In the U.S., it commences with the recitation of Our Father, three Hail Marys, and a Glory Be to the Father, and ends with the recitation of the Hail Holy Queen and the prayer from the Feast of the Rosary” (emphasis ours).

The following is the Hail Holy Queen prayer, that is, the ending of the Rosary.

“Hail, Holy Queen, Mother of Mercy, hail, our life, our sweetness and our hope! To thee do we cry, poor banished children of Eve! To thee do we send up our sighs, mourning and weeping in this valley of tears. Turn then, most gracious advocate, thine eyes of mercy toward us; and after this, our exile, show us the blessed fruit of thy womb, Jesus. O clement, O loving, O sweet Virgin Mary!”

The Hail Holy Queen prayer—which proclaims Mary as “our” LIFE, SWEETNESS, HOPE and SORROW—has official endorsement from Vatican II. By calling Mary “our life,” present-day Catholicism is saying indirectly, through the Rosary, that she has to be one, holy, catholic, and apostolic...subsists in the Catholic Church, which is governed by the successor of Peter and by the bishops in communion with him. Nevertheless, many elements of salvation are found outside its visible confines” (Catechism of the Catholic Church, Liguori Publications, p.230, emphasis ours).

To quote again the same page of the New Catholic Encyclopedia as cited earlier regarding the Rosary, we read the following about its “mysteries”:

“The mysteries are divided into three sets of five, namely, the Joyful Mysteries—the Annunciation of Christ’s Incarnation to Mary, her visit to Elizabeth, the birth of Christ, His presentation in the temple, His first Gonzaga to the temple and the infancy of Christ in the garden, His scourging, his crowning with thorns, the carrying of the cross, the crucifixion and death of Christ; the Glorious Mysteries of our resurrection in Christ, his resurrection, the sending of the Holy Spirit, the Assumption of Mary into heaven, her coronation as Queen of Heaven” (emphasis ours).

Please note: “the Assumption of Mary into Heaven” and “her coronation as Queen of Heaven” are complete fabrications without any Scriptural end to be called such at all! Yet, these two so-called “epitome of the whole Gospel,” according to present-day Catholicism! This is adding to the already perfect Gospel and thereby making it into something else that no longer has its ability to produce salvation. This is just like adding water to gasoline and trying to run your car engine on that mixture. (Of these 15 “mysteries,” over half involve Mary!)

The following Catholic quote verifies their view of the Rosary (and the aforementioned mysteries) as being the “epitome of the whole Gospel”:

“The liturgical feasts dedicated to the Mother of God and Marian prayer, such as the rosary, an ‘epitome of the whole Gospel,’ express this devotion to the Virgin Mary” (Catechism of the Catholic Church, Liguori Publications, p.235, emphasis ours).

In stark contrast to the Rosary (with its “mysteries”) being the “epitome of the whole Gospel” as Rome put, the Apostle Paul clearly outlined an entirely different Gospel, which he preached—the one that brings true salvation. Please note that Paul never mentioned Mary directly or indirectly. Similarly, who was supposedly the first pope, NEVER mentioned Mary at all in either of his two books of the New Testament. The following was their gospel:

“Now, brothers, I want to remind you of the gospel I preached to you, which you received and on which you have taken your stand. By this gospel you are saved, if you continue in it, unless you have become false believers” (Gal. 1:8-9). If one believes statements like these regarding Mary, they will not get saved or stay saved! This issue of staying saved, though entirely overlooked by the “once saved, always saved” evangelicals, is a very important and relevant issue that needs to be addressed concerning “born again” Catholics. Since we must endure to the end to be saved (Hab. 2:1-2) and hold firmly to the confidence we had at first to share in Christ (Heb. 3:14), it is crucial for a Catholic who gets saved to exit from the type of spiritual environment where doctrine, such as this, prevails and where other forms of idolatry are rampant, and to seek out a Bible-preaching church which centers on Christ alone for salvation.

Also regarding the issues of staying saved and doctrine, the Apostle John wrote in 2 John: 9—“Anyone who runs ahead and does not continue in the teaching of Christ does not have God; whoever continues in the teaching has both the Father and the Son.” Hence, it is clear that continuing in the teaching of Christ—that which we were in when we were initially saved—is essential to continue to have God! Therefore, to exchange Christ for Mary as our “life,” as taught in the Rosary, and thereby proclaimed by present-day Catholicism, is spiritually lethal. Besides the Hail Holy Queen prayer, there are other reasons why the Rosary should be rejected and with it present-day Catholicism! After all, how could any true, Christian system which also endorses and promotes the Rosary claim of itself the following?

“The Church is catholic: she promotes the fullness of the faith. She bears in herself and administers the totality of the means of salvation....The sole Church of Christ which in the Creed was declared to be one, holy, catholic, and apostolic...subsists in the Catholic Church, which is governed by the successor of Peter and by the bishops in communion with him. Nevertheless, many elements of salvation are found outside its visible confines” (Catechism of the Catholic Church, Liguori Publications, p.230, emphasis ours).

We should ask “born again” Catholics what Bible verses/they base their salvation upon. Ask him/her if they think they were “born again” at infant baptism. We should also specifically mention that the sacra- ments, good works, church membership and Mary have absolutely NO role in our salvation. If a “born again” Catholic disagrees, we should show them from Scripture what true salvation is. If they reject the clear teaching of Scripture, their testimony should be considered as not genuine. Remember, not everyone who says, “Lord, Lord,” will enter the kingdom! If truly saved, the Holy Spirit, who is the “Spirit of truth” and who is resident within one who is “born again,” will draw us to truth as found in the Bible. If an experience, vision, testimony or/miracle contradicts the written word of God on any subject, especially salvation, it should immediately be disregarded.

For a Catholic who is truly saved to support by their attendance and money, a religious system that holds people in spiritual darkness and that points people to Mary and the baby Jesus instead of Jesus himself, is to put this person him/her to share in that “wicked work” (2 John 11). The same can be said of Protestants who tell Catholics to go back to Catholicism or treat modern-day Catholicism as just another Christian system.

Tears might even be shed by one’s family when he announces he won’t be going back to the Catholic church. (The same can be said for a Mormon or Jehovah’s Witness who gets saved and changes over truth.) This means that families might become divided, but Jesus clearly said this would occur and He went on to say our love for Him must exceed our love for our families or we are “not worthy” of Him:

“Do you think I came to bring peace on earth? No, I tell you, but division. From now on there will be five in one household divided against each other, three against two and two against three. They will be divided, father against son and son against father, mother against daughter and daughter against mother, mother-in-law against daughter-in-law against mother-in-law” (Luke 12:51-53).

“Do not suppose that I have come to bring peace to the earth. I did not come to bring peace but a sword. Do not suppose that I have come to turn a man against his father, a daughter against her mother, a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law—a man’s enemies will be the members of his own household. Anyone who loves his father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; anyone who loves his brother or sister more than I am not worthy of me; and anyone who does not take his cross and follow me is not worthy of me” (Matt. 10:34-38).
